Hi Shawn,

1. Inputting DABC invoices:

-I emailed the DABC asking if they can email us invoices. Jessica said that she can email me PDFs and she will find out if there is an automated way for us to get them. I attached the latest invoice as a sample.

2. DABC price change updates:

-I attached the latest price guide. To rehash, prices change each month and this spreadsheet includes all items available not only what is in our inventory. So we would need a program that would consider what we have in SSCS and match it with what's in this spreadsheet on a monthly basis.

3. DABC monthly reporting:

-I attached the monthly reporting form. We can export reports from SSCS and then would have to reformat them into their form. I have to do some research about the proper reports but as these three items go this one feels the lowest priority, as I feel capable of sorting this out though if you have the time help would be great.

4. Configuration Client Verifone login (for configuring bitcoin):

-You can only log in on the store computer as it's hardwired to the register.

I am now working on this.

Let me know the next time you are available to chat for a few through the steps to make sure I understand the exact details with you soon.

If you have time to write out the step by step process you follow from start to finish in fine detail that could also get me started on the programming side of things.

Or both,
Thank you!
Shawn

Inputting invoices:

1. At time of delivery, all items are accounted for and any missing/broken items get reported to the DABC for credit
2. The DABC sends us an invoice with the delivery (we can also get this emailed as a PDF if we ask for it). We input this manually into SSCS. When setting up the items in our inventory, we put in 5 digit vendor item numbers that match with the DABC products so basically we go down the list of the items on the invoice, typing in the vendor item numbers, then manually adjusting all quantities and prices. A complication here to note for programming is that the numbers on the invoices are bottle count, which matters for beer inventory. When we get a case of beer, the number on the invoice will say 24 for the quantity but the quantity we have to put in is actually 6 (if they are 4 packs) or 4 (if they are six packs). Some other beers are sold as singles or 12 packs.
3. Any new items that aren't in our system (and therefore don't have a vendor item number yet) get manually entered, including item brand, name, size, quantity, department, UPC, item number, price and cost. We pull these items out of the box to get the UPC and enter them into SSCS.
4. For restaurant orders: many of the items the restaurant orders are new items, so we have to do step 3 for many items. We put restaurant orders each on their own invoice. After the invoice is entered, we open each case, remove one item, scan it through the register, remove the tax, and then do an elavon transaction for payment with the credit cards we have on file.

DABC price change updates:

We don't have a good system for this. The DABC sends us an excel sheet in the third week of the month. This sheet includes all DABC package agency inventory, not just what we have on our shelves. We manually go through this list, find the items that we carry, and change their prices in the system. The prices have to change specifically on a date, so this must be done within a short window. For example, the prices will be changing on august 1 so we need to enter all prices between close on july 31 and open on august 1. Some of the price changes are sales that only last for the next month, others are permanent changes. This is reaIIIIIIly annoying, please help! 🙄

DABC monthly reporting:

I'll be working on this for July within the next week and once I've done it I'll write it out. This is the lowest priority for help.
